U. S. CONSULS BARRED BY AN ENGLISH TOWN

Nottingham Refuses to Accept
Cutright Because of Pro-
German Letters.

Nottingham, England, January 13.—
(Via London).—Because of letters written by him and published in a newspaper at Lincoln, Feb. John L.
Cutright, newly accredited American vice consul at Nottingham, did not take up duties for which he came to this city, but returned to London. Mr. Cutright departed after he had been informed by city officials that he was not to be made as vice consul because his newspaper letters were regarded as expressive of pro-German sentiments.

Before coming to Nottingham, Mr. Cutright served as American vice consul at London, Germany. While there he wrote the letters to which the Nottingham officials took exception.

Mr. Cutright is a son of John Cutright, of Light, editor of the Levin Star, and a private secretary of William F. Bryan. The son had been in the consular service for a few months.

He Has Left England.

Washington, January 19.—J. L. Cutright, who was vice consul at Nottingham, mailed from England, January 18, for the United States, having relinquished his office of his own volition, according to state department of claim. The department has had no room to support the report that he proved unsatisfactory to the people of Nottingham.

DACIAS BARRE BY GREAT BRITAIN

Former German Steamer Won't Be Allowed to Carry Cotton to Rotterdam. Dacia's Transfer Attacked.

Washington, January 19.—While the formal reply of the British government has not been made, Ambassador Page, at London, cabled the state department today that Great Britain would not agree to the American proposal that, pending a decision on questions of international law involved, the steamship Dacia be permitted to proceed to Germany with the cargo of cotton she is loading at a Texas port.

Solicitor Johnson advised Edward W. Breitung, who bought the Dacia from the Hamburg-American line, that the British would regard his ship as a fair prize if she started either for Rotterdam or Bremen. At the same time the owners of the cargo were notified that in the event of the Dacia's seizure, their cotton would not be held, and they would be free to sell it to the British government or forward it on some other ship.

Through the state department, with a view to relieving the immediate pressure in the south for an outlet for cotton, has been trying for the past week to obtain assent to the American proposal. Officials here rather well understand the abandonment of this makeshift plan and the prospect of an early decision on the legal questions involved, which, in not being satisfactory to the United States, may properly be made a subject for diplomatic negotiation.

So far as can be gathered, Great Britain in the Dacia case, has not challenged the right of the United States to place its flag on a German vessel purchased by an American citizen. At present, according to officials here, the objection to the American registry of the Dacia concerns the genuineness of the sale of the ship to a German corporation, the inference being drawn that the ownership of the vessel remains in German hands.

It is stated that the British government will not agree to the transfer, and though the burden of proof as to the genuineness of the sale is on the American purchaser, a question is raised as to whether the evidence in his behalf that they are willing to let the case go before any tribunal which is not secret and is governed by the ordinary rules of common law.

OWNERS OF COTTON
London, January 19.—England has not yet delivered to Ambassador Page the response to the request from Washington that the former Hamburg-American liner Dacia, which has been transferred to American registry, be permitted to make a special trip with cotton to Germany without regarding the voyage as establishing a precedent concerning the right of Germany to interned in the United States to resume trade with Germany after being brought under the American flag.

It may be stated that the officials here believe that the owners of the cotton would be satisfied with the British attitude. The disposition of the ship, however, is regarded as a different matter, and it is generally believed that if the Dacia sails for either a German port or a British port she will be taken before a prize court.

Although British officials feel that the owners of the cotton would be satisfied with the British attitude, the uncertainty of the steamship's status before she leaves port is nevertheless a serious matter.

INSANITY PLEA MADE BY HINMAN'S SLAYER

Perkins Alleges He Was De- ranged by Drugs When He Shot Newspaper Man.

Columbia, S. C., January 19.—Temporary mental derangement caused by overdoes of drugs, was the defense made here today by attorneys for George B. Perkins, a Boston architect, who was placed on trial in the United States district court for the charge of killing F. W. R. Hinman, business manager of the Florida Times-Union, November 11, 1914. The shooting occurred on the Clyde liner Mohawk, off the coast of North Carolina.

It was in evidence that the defendant had prescriptions calling for strong drugs from that port. Robert Anderson, a New York pharmacist, testified that he filled the prescriptions and identified the drugs found in Perkins' effects on the Mohawk.

M. R. Wentworth, who was in the same stateroom with the defendant, testified that Perkins took repeated doses of the drugs.

The trial moved swiftly today, the jury being concluded early in the afternoon. The defense will close its case early tomorrow. The government, it will, will present expert witnesses to show that Perkins was sane.

Captain A. D. Ingram, of the Mohawk, and another passenger, were also wounded by Perkins. Ingram testified that he saw Perkins shoot Hinman in the lower saloon after dinner when he was returning to his stateroom. In five minutes he returned to the saloon and saw Perkins standing in the coat over his pajamas. For a time, in a somewhat wild way, he talked with passengers near the center of the saloon and suddenly exclaimed: "Oh, there is the captain."

As he approached Captain Ingram and the Hinman the captain advised him to return to his stateroom. Perkins then shot at the captain, hitting him in the chest and arm. Perkins then fled to his stateroom and hid.

Perkins' wife, Mrs. M. E. Perkins, testified that she saw her husband shoot Hinman and that she saw him shoot the captain.

Divorce Suits Filed.

Team Work Wins

If Georgia is successful in getting her citizens to practice as well as preach loyalty to her own interests, we will soon forget the evil effects of the unpleasantness in Europe and all of us will have more work and more money.

There is not one valid reason why each of us should not, whenever possible, buy and use the goods made in our own state. This keeps our money at home and furnishes employment to our labor. It makes our friends and neighbors independent, self-supporting workmen instead of objects of charity, and in the long run it helps you.

Make it a rule in your home to use an Atlanta-made Cook-Stove or Heater, buy Eureka Coffee, Cotton Bloom Shortening, Cornfield Hams and Bacon, Block's Crackers, Stone's Cakes and Atlanta Milled Flour.

See that Red Seal Shoes and Aragon Shirts and Radium Socks are given the preference because they are worthy of it.

Buy of your home merchants and buy Home Manufactured Goods because they are full value and give you a chance to once more get back the money you spend.

THE CHARM OF MOTHERHOOD
Enhanced By Perfect Physical Health.

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism untrained for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother result.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once children there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

FOR BETTER SCHOOLS
STUDENTS MAKE PLEA

Tell Rotarians They Are Unable to Study Properly in Present Buildings.

The imperative need of better high school facilities was forcibly presented to the Atlanta Rotarians at their meeting and luncheon at the Wincoff hotel Tuesday afternoon, by three students of the Boys' High school.

Richard W. Courts, Jr., Francis Spears and Walter P. Blinn, advised that the school buildings were in a deplorable condition, and that something had to be done at once if the boys and girls of the city were to be given an education under conditions that were "decent, respectable and adequate to the demands that were being made upon them."

President Albert S. Adams presided over the meeting when the ordinary business was conducted, and Vice President Frank O. Foster took the chair when the schools were under discussion.

High School Boys Speak.

President Adams announced that the special matter to be acted upon was the movement for better high schools for Atlanta, and he turned the meeting over to Vice President Foster, who stated that the present boys and girls high school buildings were a disgrace to the city.

"Atlanta," he said, "had fine office buildings, a costly courthouse, a good city hall, but no building for the high schools that is fit for the education of human beings."

Richard W. Courts, Jr., the first speaker from the Boys' High school, declared that he doubted if very many business men of Atlanta knew where the Boys' High school was located. He said that the public streets were the campus where the lives of the boys were daily in danger, that the noisier passing vehicles made such a din that pupils and teachers had to scream at each other to be heard; that 400 boys were crowded into a lot of small and poorly ventilated rooms.

"We do our best," he stated, "but what can be expected of boys under such conditions? Our auditorium has been cut up into classrooms until only a pen is left in the center, in which the boys try to hold debates. The building was erected years ago, when the attendance was more than one-third of what it is at present. We not only have no chance to do good in the classrooms, but we have no athletic facilities and we have to go to Piedmont park when we wish to take healthy outdoor exercise. All of this causes the boys to lose interest and pride in their school, which can only operate against the proper spirit of education."

Condition of the Building.

The next high school speaker was Francis Spears. He said there were fifteen classrooms, of which one-third were improvised. These were too small, poorly ventilated and poorly heated. One room was forced to burn lights all day, so the boys could see how to read. All of the departments lack adequate equipment. There are no study hall, no lockers and no bicycle room. A library and a lunch room are needed. He said the building as a whole was a fire trap and unfit from every standpoint for school purposes.

The third speaker, Walter P. Blinn, said that a campus and an assembly hall were imperative needs. He then proceeded to furnish the Rotarians with the following interesting facts, which was heard with considerable interest.

Louisville, Ky., is now building a $250,000 school for boys in addition to spending $115,000 for lot and equipment.

New Orleans last year completed a modern and up-to-date high school building at a cost of $400,000. This handsome building has all the modern conveniences and is fitted in every way to meet the needs of a large city school.

Birmingham has a high school building that cost nearly $200,000. This building is not adequate to the needs of the city but it is far beyond anything Atlanta has.

Mobile has just spent $50,000 remodeling her high school building. Macon has just completed a high school building that cost $120,000. Richmond, Va., has just completed a high school building that cost $400,000.

Given a Vote of Thanks.

When the speakers concluded a vote of thanks was given them.

Clark Howell, editor of The Constitution, who was among the guests present, was called on. He paid a high tribute to the youth speakers for their clear and forcible presentation of the high school situation. He said the time was not sufficient to discuss such an important question.

There is enough in the high school situation," he said, "to cause an outburst of indignation that could not find expression in a day's solid case."

He said that while the county had spent $1,250,000 for a female in which to try criminals, the city could not find as much as a few thousand for a high school home for our boys and girls. He concluded by saying that there was no body of men in the city more capable of taking hold of the situation than the Rotarians.

On motion of Henry W. Grady the Rotarians enthusiastically and unanimously approved the movement for better high school facilities, and called upon the city to act accordingly.
